An User-Friendly Pronunciation Guide

This website is about sounds. The following methods are suggested, just to follow and understand the content of not only this website but the material contained in the 3 books published so far. The guidance is based on on Practical English usage. Just pronounce these sounds as you would do in English and ignore the diacritical marks [ accent marks ] associated with characters even if they are shown. They are shown only as examples of the originality and difficulties imposed by linguists. The important portions of words have been hi-lited.
